

Federalists Propose

Bill for New England

Against the South

Both Arkansas senators are in the national spotlight this week as the result of deep-seated quarrels with the Federalists of President Truman's administration.

In the first instance, Senator John L. McClellan is opposing the President's plan to put collectors of the Internal Revenue Bureau under civil service. The senior senator points out that it is merely another White House grab for power. McClellan notes that although Senator J. W. Fulbright and he agreed on a joint recommendation for the office of collector in Arkansas, the President has ignored them and left the office vacant for many months.

It is reported — and I get this from the press wires, not from either senator — that the reason the President has refused to respect the traditional right of senators to patronage in their home state is that Governor Sid McMath wants someone else named collector. And the governor, by reason of many trips to Washington, seems to have undue influence with the President.

The United States Senate, however, always sustains its own members against White House encroachment. Therefore it is a certainty that the Arkansas collector's office will remain vacant, and it is likely that the President's grab for power will have the ultimate result of defeating his civil service plan for the entire Internal Revenue Bureau.

You might wonder about Arkansas' governor meddling with senators' affairs when his time could have been better spent mending his own fences — and your point would be well taken.

In the second instance, Senator Fulbright is outraged by a proposal from a member of the Truman cabinet, Labor Secretary Tobin, to establish a uniform wage scale across the country. The immediate plan concerns just one industry, the manufacture of electric lamps. Arkansas would be affected, with one Westinghouse factory at Little Rock and another planned near Hot Springs.

But Senator Fulbright sees this as a sinister beginning against all new industry in the South. The Associated Press quoted the senator from Washington yesterday as follows:

"I think maybe one of Tobin's motives is to try to maintain the present pattern of New England and prevent the growth of competition."

The senator's crisp remark could be enlarged upon. Secretary Tobin is himself a New Englander. And New England has lost 80 odd factories within the last year or two, either through liquidation or removal to Southern states. In every instance New England politicians and labor leaders have blamed Southern competition for their misfortune.

That, precisely, is what Senator Fulbright is talking about.

And he and other Southern senators and representatives now suspect that federal authority delegated to the White House is going to be twisted into a device by which state interests in New England can be served — against the legitimate interests of the South.

I say "legitimate" — because the South is entitled to the same chance in this generation to build up its own industry under home rule that enabled New England to prosper in past generations.

Now that New England is slipping her politicians want the economic rules changed. And the change would have only one possible target — the South.

Regardless of high sounding phrases and liberal declarations any close examination of Federalist policy shows that it has ulterior motives and a low and mean origin.

The greater the concentration of power in Washington the greater the danger that some regional group, like New England, will secretly strike at a business rival — with the sacred seal of the United States of America.

It is a dirty and disillusioning picture.

The people of Arkansas should rally behind their alert and courageous senators, McClellan and Fulbright.

Truman has something to answer for.

And McMath, too.

Hope Boy Sails With Navy Brass

New London, Conn., Feb. 20 — The Secretary of the Navy and Terry G. Caston, electronics technician, first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Caston, 1400 South Main St., Hope, Ark., were shipmates when the USS Flying Fish made its 5000th dive in Long Island Sound here today.

They were among 90 crew members and visiting officials who took the submarine down to establish a record as the highest number of dives ever logged by a U. S. submarine.

Secretary Kimball became an honorary member of the Flying Fish crew when he took his diving station at the submarine's bow plates outside mechanism (which effect trim while submerged).

The first patent for a system of wireless transmission in the United States was issued to Dr. Mahlon Loomis, of Washington, D. C., in 1872.

Special Meet of Grand Jury Called March 10

Circuit Judge Dick Huie has called the Hempstead County Grand Jury to meet in special session at 9:00 a. m., Monday, March 10, it was learned today.

Sheriff Claud Sutton said that the action was taken at his request. "Any person, or group of individuals, who think they can engage in gambling operations in this county in open violation of the state law, simply by purchasing a Federal Gambling Stamp to keep in the clear of the federal authorities, had better think again," the sheriff stated.

"Not only can the person or persons so engaged be prosecuted, but the premises where the illegal operations occur may be padlocked and closed. And, the purchase of a federal gambling stamp is evidence of an intention to engage in such illegal operations under the state law," the sheriff said.

Gas Line to Be Expanded West, South

Washington, Feb. 29 (AP) — Texas Gas Transmission Corp said yesterday it had completed arrangements for financing a $33,752,000 pipeline expansion program in the Midwest and South.

W. M. Elmer, vice president and general manager of the Owensboro, Ky., company, told a Federal Power Commission examiner Texas Gas has commitments from 14 institutional investors to buy 24 million dollars worth of first mortgage, four per cent bonds at 98 per cent of face value.

Proceeds from these bond sales, together with earnings and depreciation allowances accumulated during the year, he added, will cover the cost of the proposed expansion and another pipeline project now nearing completion.

Texas Gas is seeking FPC authority to construct 407 miles of 26-inch pipeline paralleling present natural gas mains between Louisiana and Kentucky.

It also seeks authority to increase pumping station compressor horsepower to step up daily gas deliveries about 240 million cubic feet. Texas Gas contends the gas is needed in Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

Red Co-ed Suspended by School

Detroit, Feb. 29 (AP) — A co-ed's suspension by her university and a possible federal fraud case against a witness today pointed up effects of the communism inquiry.

At the same time, house American Activities Committee investigators prepared to wind up their present hearing in today's session. They hope to come back next month.

Mrs. Lorraine Faxon Meisner, 21, pert blonde, was suspended by Wayne University last night. Only a few hours earlier she had refused on the witness stand to answer questions. For this the committee reprimanded her.

She was informed of her suspension. Continued on Page Two

New OPS Boss Must Rule on Disputed Secrecy Clause Covering Violator's Names

Washington, Feb. 29 (AP) — Ellis Arnall, the new price boss, soon will have to rule on a knotty public information policy for his agency.

"It's this: Should the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) publish the name of a violator when the agency decides the violation was not willful or the result of negligence?"

OPS policy as it now stands says no — the name should not be published; the publicity would be unfair if the violation was of innocent nature.

Newspaper editors heading committee on freedom of information say yes — the name should be published; penalties should not be inflicted in secrecy and the public is entitled to know who the violators are.

OPS policy clearly calls for publication of names when: (1) Any court action is taken against a firm or an individual for ceiling price violations, and (2) when the violator makes a settlement and pays damages exceeding the amount of the overcharge. OPS regards these in the nature of fines or penalties.

But the name is withheld when the violator pays only the exact amount of the overcharge. Such re-

The grand jury report said the "Whalebone Cafe," operated by J. R. Wynn and located south of Highway 24, should be padlocked and prevented from engaging in business as a cafe and dance hall.

The report said that several witnesses testified to buying liquor from the Ingram brothers who live six miles from Nashville and in Hempstead County.

The grand jury requested that the court furnish the circuit judge and prosecuting attorney of the eighth judicial circuit and the Hempstead sheriff copy of the jury report.

The jury also reported hearing witnesses tell of buying liquor from a negro, Clarence Cheatham, also a resident of Hempstead county.

A group from Ouachita College, Arkadelphia, presented a program to the Hope High School student body during seventh period February 27.

They were: Tommy Tedford of Arkadelphia, student secretary and publicity director; Earl McCuin of El Dorado, a senior; and Melvin Thrash of Hope, a sophomore.

Mr. Tedford performed tricks of magic and a ventriloquist act using his dummy "Willie B. Smart." Mr. McCuin gave interpretations. Mr. Thrash was announcer.

A copy of the yearbook, the "Ouachitan," was presented to the high school library. Peggy Starnes, president of the Library Club, accepted the annual.

Foreign Aid Issue on Air 8:30 Tonight

Washington, Feb. 29 (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Acheson carries to the country tonight his appeal for support of more billions for foreign aid. He is expected to emphasize that progress in European rearmament amply justifies American help.

The State Department arranged maximum radio and television presentation of Acheson's speech on short notice to get it to the largest number of people.

The department said the speech would be broadcast by CBS, NBC and Mutual and telecast by DuMont at 9:30 p. m. EST. In addition it will be telecast at 11:15 by NBC television network and re-broadcast by ABC radio network at 11:30. The speech will run about 30 minutes.

Acheson's immediate purpose is to report on decisions regarding German rearmament and the European defense buildup reached during his just-completed mission to London and Lisbon.

In so doing he will be launching a campaign for public support of the administration's foreign aid program which soon must stand the test of getting funds from Congress.

Yesterday Acheson gave the House Foreign Affairs Committee a private report on his work abroad. Chairman Richards (D-SC) said later the Committee had received complete details of Acheson's talks with British, French and German foreign ministers in London and with ministers of the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty Council in Lisbon.

Richards said he thought Acheson and those with him had done a "fine job" and that Acheson "realizes that we are not yet out of the woods" on solving Europe's defense problems.

Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) said Acheson left a feeling of "cautious optimism" over the possibilities of uniting Europe.

The big point which Acheson has stressed since his return Wednesday is that the progress which has been made is so great as fully to justify American support and financial encouragement.

This is expected to be the theme of his talk tonight. His great concern has been over the fact that defense projects in which this country and its allies are engaged have reached a critical point in an American election year when Congress may be expected to question almost all kinds of appropriations.

OPS delegates to its office of enforcement the power to decide whether there was willfulness in effecting the violation was not willful or the result of negligence?

Both the OPS policy of non-publication and the delegation of authority to enforcement agents have drawn the fire of spokesmen for the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) and the Associated Press Managing Editors Association (APME).

Urging OPS to change its policy and permit publication of the violators' names, these editors have filed protests against:

Draping a cloak of secrecy around the violators as opposed to the principle that citizens accused by the state must be openly and publicly tried.

Making enforcement agents "accusers, judge and jury" in deciding the degree of willfulness and whether the names shall be published.

Creating a precedent that "may infect other agencies of government under circumstances not equally safeguarded."

The first patent for a system of wireless transmission in the United States was issued to Dr. Mahlon Loomis, of Washington, D. C., in 1872.

Crisis May Break Up the Korean Parley

Panmunjom, Korea, Saturday, March 1 — (UPI) — A crisis which could cause the break-up of Korean armistice negotiations faced Allied and Communist truce teams today.

The Allies told the Reds "finally and irrevocably" yesterday — apparently on orders from the highest levels in Washington — that Russia is unacceptable as a member of a neutral truce-supervision commission.

If the Communists insist on their stand that Russia be included, there seems no way out.

The United Nations command hopes that as in the past where a breaking-point has been reached, the Reds will give in.

But this seems the biggest crisis in the true talks since last July. Then, the Reds and Allies deadlocked in the Allied demand that the existing battle front, not the 38th parallel, be made the cease-fire line. Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.) told the House in supporting a UMT bill yesterday: "Let's either pass it or kill it."

Both Chalmers Vinson (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee, leading the fight for the bill, and Rep. Short (R-Mo.) heading the opposition, told a reporter they wanted the same definitive vote.

This means voting directly on UMT instead of sidetracking the issue by sending it back to committee. That procedure would put the measure on the floor for this session, but it could emerge again.

The present bill calls for compulsory six months' training of 18-year-olds, with 7-1/2 years' service in the reserves. It does not specify a starting date or designate how many are to be trained.

Several amendments are expected to be presented next week, including one to set a date for either the end of this phase of UMT or for a congressional review of the program.

A motion to send the measure back to the committee also is expected. This would permit Congress to postpone action without taking a definite stand on the issue of UMT itself.

"This matter has been pending here for years and years," Kilday said. "If there ever was a proposition that was thoroughly studied, this one has been. Let's have this issue terminated."

"I think the next move is up to the Communists," grimly commented the official U. N. spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols.

Asked if the U. N. statement meant that there will be no armistice unless the Reds back down, Nuckols merely said:

"The statement speaks for itself."

Nuckols said the U. N. was taking its strongest stand since last July, when it refused to accept the 38th parallel as a cease-fire line. The Reds yielded on that occasion and finally agreed the war should end on the existing battle line, far north of the parallel in the center and east.

The Russian question thus took its place as the biggest of four deadlocks now blocking a Korean cease-fire. Also still unresolved are the questions of forcible vs. voluntary repatriation of war prisoners, the right of the Communists to build airfields during a truce, and the number of ports through which troops may be rotated.

Following the business session mulligan was served.

OPS to Delay Cutback in State Prices

Little Rock, Feb. 29 (AP) — Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) has confirmed reports that the Office of Price Stabilization is planning to suspend for 30 days an order which override Arkansas' "fair trade" law.

The senator told the Arkansas Gazette last night that he hoped the suspension order would be signed today in time to head off the agency's first regulation, which is scheduled to go into effect Saturday.

Should the OPS' first order stand, it would mean a two or three cent reduction in the retail price of a package of cigarettes.

Here's the way the whole think came about:

On Feb. 1, the OPS said it would revoke supplementary Regulation 53 March 1. This regulation exempted Arkansas cigarette sales from application of the agency's general price regulation on the ground that Act 101 of 1951 — the so-called "fair trades" act — prescribed minimum markups for cigarettes. The act also had the practical effect of boosting cigarette prices two cents per pack.

Then the OPS discovered that 26 other states had similar laws. The order exempting Arkansas then was revoked by OPS, because it said it could not refuse exemptions to the other states if it allowed Arkansas' exemption to stand.

Kefauver originally was entered, but didn't want to touch Humphrey.

Many Charges in Red Probe in California

Los Angeles, Feb. 29 (AP) — Communist underground plans, a national defense committee and atomic scientists — contained in the testimony of a top ex-Communist — have enlivened the trial of California's 18-party leaders.

John Lautner, Eastern functionary of the party for 21 years, faced the defense yesterday with false documents from the witness stand.

The Communist party in 1948 and 1949 devised an intricate system for going underground in New York and elsewhere if and when the party was declared illegal.

It was directed by Robert Thompson, one of the 11 national leaders convicted of conspiracy in 1949. Thompson appointed Lautner to carry out the program in New York state.

John Williamson, another of the convicted leaders, disclosed with Lautner the possibility of a national network of amateur radio stations and mobile transmitters to link the proposed underground.

Lautner was in charge of buying and distributing printing equipment under the plan. In 1949, he said, he gave a mimeograph machine to Dorothy Healey, one of the present defendants, while she was attending a meeting in New York.

In 1941, one of his teachers at his early national school for leaders was an atomic scientist, an assistant professor at Columbia University known to Lautner only as John.

The California are charged with conspiring — with each other and with the convicted national leaders — to teach and advocate the overthrow of the government.

Trust-Busters Go to Work on Radio Business

New York, Feb. 29 (AP) — A federal antitrust inquiry into the radio-television manufacturing industry has been started here.

Major manufacturers of sets and transmitting equipment have been summoned with subpoenas to produce documents for the inquiry by a deadline by May 12.

Clifford C. Williams, head of the antitrust division of the Justice Department for the Southern District of New York, announced yesterday that the inquiry had been launched and that the jury would be summoned. But he declined to give details.

It was learned that the jury will seek to determine whether any restraint of trade exists in the radio-TV manufacturing field, including color television equipment, and will look into the patent situation in the industry. Broadcasting, the entertainment club of radio, is not involved.

Senate Committee to get the data. Senators Cain (R-Wash) and Kefauver (D-Tenn) promised Knowland full support.

Knowland and the Defense Department supplied the figures last year during the Senate investigation into the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"I have never been so shocked," Knowland told the Senate, "as when he received 'a rather police brush-off of this matter' in a letter from Secretary Lovett.

Knowland said he has a high respect for Lovett. Cain suggested the secretary may not even have seen the letter of Knowland's request.

Knowland has asked for "accumulated non-battle casualty figures since the Korean War started."

Lovett's reply said battle casualties through Feb. 22 numbered 106,000 and that the Army had not been making the non-battle casualties public in recent months.

The defense secretary said those formerly included men who checked into sick bays or even naked for an aspirin. He said the Defense Department has revised its data under the title "non-battle dead, missing and evacuated sick and injured."

Lovett and U. S. armed forces all over the world suffered 17,000 battle deaths from June 25, 1950 — the starting date of the Korean war — through the end of 1950.

There were, he said, "8,000 deaths from all other causes." Total deaths were listed at 20,000.

The secretary said only 1,000 of the non-battle deaths were in the Korean area.

Knowland said he also will ask Defense Department spokesman about reports from Korea that tanks and artillery recently have been getting enough ammunition.

He read parts of a letter from a frontline U. S. soldier, who said:

"Our tanks are set up on a ridge and have unlimited targets to shoot at, but they only give them a very limited supply of ammunition, so they fire their load for a day in about a half hour or 45 minutes."

"At the rate this war is going, it ought to last at least 20 years. I think the next step will be to take away the weapons and start throwing rocks. It will be cheaper that way."

U. S. Sub Sets New Record for Diving

New London, Conn., Feb. 29 (AP) — The navy submarine Flying Fish takes her 5,000th dunking today and that, so far as the Navy knows, is more times than any submarine anywhere ever has been under water.

The Navy only claims it as a record for United States submarines, but doesn't know of any craft that has bettered it.

Dive No. 5,000 scheduled to take place about 11 a. m. (EST) in the Long Island Sound operations area near the mouth of the Thames River.

The Flying Fish, built in 1941, is used as an experimental craft by the navy's underwater sound laboratory. She has a distinguished World War II record, sinking 18 Japanese vessels on 13 patrols.

Members of the WMU of the First Baptist Church met on Monday afternoon at the colored First Baptist Church to assist them in organizing a WMU.

Mrs. Wesley Lindsey opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. L. L. Buchanan, president, conducted a short business meeting at which time it was voted to have a season of prayer for Home Missions the first Friday in March for an all day meeting at the church.

Circle 4 gave the program with Mrs. Eddie Danner presenting the topic on "Ministry of Prayer." The opening song was "Take Time to Be Holy." The devotional was given by Mrs. Wilburn Wills, followed with a few minutes of silent prayer closed with prayer by Mrs. Roy Shattoh.

The program was in the form of a playlet and round table discussion that took place in Ridgecrest, North Carolina and each told of their experience of prayer. Those taking part were Mrs. Roy Loomis, Mrs. Roy Stalton, Mrs. W. D. Bull, Mrs. Ed Husley, Mrs. Thel Hanning, and Mrs. Jim Herring. Mrs. Danner told of different experiences of prayer. The six encouraged experiences of prayer were read in unison.

Mrs. Buchanan offered the closing prayer.

The unions are demanding a 25 cents an hour wage hike plus differentials of six and 12 cents for the evening and midnight shifts.

The highest company offer is reported to be 10 cents — about the amount the CIO oil workers may receive under the cost-of-living wage formula.

Most oil workers have received all of the 10 per cent catch-up wage boosts allowed by the Wage Stabilization Board up to January 1951. That leaves cost-of-living increases of 4.6 per cent from then until now.

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 29 (AP) — A mass meeting of the CIO oil workers union here last night developed some opposition to a delay in the threatened nationwide strike against the petroleum industry.

A week postponement of the walkout, originally set for midnight Sunday, was approved in Washington by CIO, AFL and independent union officials.

Asked if there was any possibility of a "wildcat" or unauthorized strike by union members in this area as a result of the delay, a union spokesman said "that is something we will have to wait and see."

Union spokesmen reported they already had discussed an "orderly shutdown" at the Texas Company refinery here and had arranged a conference with Deep Rock Oil Corp. refinery officials at Cushing.

Other plants in Oklahoma to be affected if the strike materializes are Tidewater Associated Oil Co. at Drumright and Cities Service Co., Ponca City.

Approximately 5,000 to 6,000 Oklahoma oil company workers would be idle by the strike, a union spokesman estimated. Production employees and workers in the field were included in these figures, he added.

The fraud case was threatened against Belfast-born Patrick Rice, vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers giant Ford Local 600.

This was connected with Rice's testimony regarding his purported application to the government for a passport to go to Europe last year.

This did not necessarily mean he would find a man willing to take on the premiership. And any new Premier would have to work out a program that would win Assembly approval before he could take office.

The Gaullists consider they have a right to leadership because they control the biggest bloc of deputies in the Assembly.

But their bloc is less than 20 per cent of the total assemblymen and a government requires the steady support of 50 per cent to stay in office.

Faure's 40-day term was shorter than usual even in this country of unstable cabinets, and the country's economic and financial situation has been maddening.

In an editorial written before the vote was taken, the Independent Socialist paper Combat said:

"It matters little whether the increased taxes asked by Faure are voted or not. Tomorrow, like today, the threat will persist. Nothing else will be solved. Prices will continue to rise, the franc continue to lose its value, the budget deficit will grow, wages will continue their breathless chase of prices and the Indochinese war will continue to need more blood money."

French retail prices have risen 39 per cent in the past 18 months. The franc is worth only 473 to the dollar, although its official rate is 350. The assembly has just voted an "escalator clause" to raise wages every time prices climb another 10 per cent. And the war news from Indochina is bad.

Among the critical situations which Combat's discouraged comment did not mention:

France is almost out of foreign exchange and is being forced to make drastic import cuts.

The commission has nearly reached the legal limit on what it can borrow from the Bank of France and may have to set printing presses rolling to produce more money.

Negotiators Try to Break Deadlock

Panmunjom, Korea, Friday, Feb. 29 (UPI) — Sub-committees of the Korean true negotiating teams will attempt today to break a potentially dangerous deadlock over the issue of forced repatriation of prisoners of war.

Staff officers wrestled with the problem for three weeks. The Communists insisted prisoners of war held by the Allies be sent home, by force if necessary, regardless of their own desires. The Allies said they would "never" agree to do that.

Confessing failure to find any basis of agreement, the staff officers decided to turn the issue back to the main delegations.

As the result Rear Adm. Ruthven E. Libby, for the Allies, and North Korean Gen. Lee Sang Cho will meet today with a staff of fellow sub-committee members to restart talks on the sub-committee level.

After the problem was turned over to the staff officers Feb. 5 Libby said of the repatriation issue:

"We are still 180 degrees apart."

That still held good today as the sub-committees prepared to meet at 11 a. m. (8 p. m. Thursday EST).

Negotiations are deadlocked also over the Communist demands that Russia be made a member of a "neutral" armistice observance team and that the Allies permit the construction of air bases in North Korea during an armistice.

The staff officers exchange final drafts of the completed portions of the prisoner agreement in English, Chinese and Korean. These provided for Red Cross visits to prison camps after an armistice, a Red Cross escort from camps to the exchange point at Panmunjom, and completion of the exchange within 60 days.

U. N. staff officers at the same time renewed their offer to give the Reds information about 44,000 "missing" Communist war prisoners if the Communists provide similar data on 53,000 missing Allied prisoners. The Reds did not reply.

When the Reds asserted that the Allied statement yesterday on the fatal riots in the Koje internment camp last week was unsatisfactory, U. N. Col. James C. Murray again said the question was none of their business.

"The civilian internees (in Koje) are not personnel of your side," he said. "They are nationals of the republic of South Korea and thus an internal affair of our side."

The Reds asserted that the Allied statement yesterday on the fatal riots in the Koje internment camp last week was unsatisfactory, U. N. Col. James C. Murray again said the question was none of their business.

The delegates representing the Hope John Cain Chapter DAR in Pine Bluff Thursday through Saturday are: Chapter regent, Mrs. Wilbur Jones, Ozan; regent-elect, Mrs. Dickson Watkins, vice-regent Mrs. Finley Ward, state chairman, Mrs. Richards Howard, who is state chairman to the pages, Miss Roberta Howard, page to Mrs. J. Three Injured in Pine Bluff Fracas

Pine Bluff, Feb. 28 (AP) — A knife-shooting battle in a furniture store here resulted in wounds to three persons.

Wounded in the fight yesterday were J. F. and Wayne Raley, operators of the downtown store, and Bernard Franklin, 19-year-old Negro.

Police Lt. John E. Tolbert said

The Raleys suffered minor cuts, and that Franklin was shot in the arm and neck.

The officer said the store operators told him the fight started when Franklin entered and began tearing over merchandise.

Starts Sunday at the Saenger

There's merriment, music and romance ahooy as Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis don U. S. Navy duds in "Sailor Beware," the new Dean Martin - Jerry Lewis comedy will open Sunday at the Saenger Theatre. This Paramount release marks the fifth screen appearance of the sensational team that has been setting nation-wide attendance records with their films and personal appearances. Also established as TV's top laugh twosome, these masters of mayhem and music were last seen on the screen in "That's My Boy." This latest film, like three of their four previous vehicles, was produced by Hal Wallis.

In this secret pact made last May, Britain agreed to join the United States in bombing Red China air bases if those bases are used for launching heavy air attacks against the United Nations forces in Korea.

Brightening the scenery and adding to the general merriment of "Sailor Beware" are Corinne Calvet talented Parisian eye-filler and pert and pretty Marion Marshall, who saw action with Dean and Jerry in "That's My Boy." The story spots the handsome baritone and the bean-polish buffoon as zany submariner sailors who have the admirals shivering their aching timbers before they've finished by their hitch.

Jerry is the muddle-headed recruit who ties himself into knots while learning to make with the ropes, and Dean is the roving-eyed sea wolf who makes the Waves go wild. When the pair is assigned to an undersized boat, their distracted skipper gets a laugh-loaded lesson in how harrowing life at sea can be.

Jerry's fumbling attempts to woo a pretty Wave and Dean's high-powered pitch for a streamlined movie queen supply the romance in this wild-eyed tale of two goofy gobs making a very strange contribution to the national defense.

Martin applies his throaty baritone style to a score of new tunes crafted by Mark Davis and Jerry Livingston. The songs include:

"Never Before," "The Sailors Polka," "The Old Calliope," "Today Tomorrow Forever" and "Never Before" and Miss Calvet and Lewis also get in on the warbling. The comedy highlights include Jerry's accidental selection as kiss-in-chief for a TV contest to find the girl with the most bussable lips, his masquerade as a hula dancer in Hawaii, and several of the indescribable Martin and Lewis night club routines.

Supporting performers include Robert Strauss, Lieb Erickson, Don Wilson, Vince Edwards and Skip Homeier. Hal Walker directed from a screenplay by James Allardice and Martin Rackin.

David Livingston, the explorer, disappeared in Uganda, the British African protectorate, while searching for the sources of the Nile River more than 80 years ago.

best attack is the direct one. Ask your fiance outright just how much, if any, truth there is to the story. Don't make a big issue of it; tell him jokingly that you heard this story and ask what he thinks of it.

Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Dear Miss Dix: I am now 21 and for two years have been dating a boy three years older. Recently, in response to his ardent wooing, and with his promises that we would be married as soon as he finished night school, I lost my virtue to him. However, when he finished school, he bought a car and now is in debt for it. He has postponed our marriage until the debt is paid. He has a good job in a nearby city and comes home every week end. During the week, when he is away, he doesn't want me to go out, even with other girls. I get pretty lonely some staying home every night; I don't want to go out with other boys as I love him very much; I want to get married, and am sure we could live on what we make (I also have a good job). My bank account could give us a good start. Can I believe his promises that we will be married soon or am I just kidding myself? MARIE R. W.

Answer: You were very foolish to become intimate with your young man, but it's too late now for scolding. As you seem to realize your own foolishness, I hope you are not continuing the intimacy. If you are, you can be sure he'll take his time about marrying you.

You already have a good indication of where you stand when your sweetheart postpones marriage on the flimsy excuse of preferring a car. You are playing second fiddle to a piece of machinery. And that is only the beginning. You'll merit less and less consideration, until suddenly you'll realize everything is over between you and some other girl is due to get the wedding ring.

And that is only the beginning. You'll merit less and less consideration, until suddenly you'll realize everything is over between you and some other girl is due to get the wedding ring.

Set A Deadline

Make a clear-cut issue of the whole affair. Insist on a definite and prompt wedding date, or break off completely. And don't be lured into surrendering your bank account by further false promises. Let your boy friend pay his own debts. If he marries you and you keep your job, help out with your salary, but money in the bank is a wonderful security—and the only one you're likely to have for quite a while.

Do you realize how much you have given up already to a demanding sweetheart, with absolutely no return — not even a modicum of consideration? You're not even supposed to have a girl friend, but I'm sure the boy friend isn't spending his evenings alone while he's away.

You can be quite sure his precious car isn't kept in the garage all week.

As things are now, you face nothing but a bleak future with plenty of heartbreak. Get out of this mess while you have a chance. Make a new life for yourself with new friends — boys and girls that will be dependable and honorable. All you have is a vacillating, selfish and self-centered man who will never bring you happiness.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 21, and for the past nine months have been going with a boy. He is a great talker, and exaggerates grossly. I think I love him until he begins to talk, then I almost dislike him. He is also untidy and careless about his appearance; I am just the opposite. Do you think he will improve later?

M. E. S.

Answer: You have a bad combination of faults to correct in your young man, and I scarcely think it's worth the effort. While you might shame him into a minimum of tidiness, his talkiness will probably never be overcome. Youable talkers seem to be among the un-

Martin-Lewis Comedy Opens Here Sunday

Hal Wallis' "Sailor Beware," the new Dean Martin - Jerry Lewis comedy will open Sunday at the Saenger Theatre. Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) — There is cheering news for Americans in the disclosure that Britain seems to have lined up with the United States on a Korean War plan which may be used in dealing with the Chinese Reds.

In this secret pact made last May, Britain agreed to join the United States in bombing Red China air bases if those bases are used for launching heavy air attacks against the United Nations forces in Korea.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill disclosed the deal to the House of Commons Tuesday night and said he had reaffirmed it on his recent visit to Washington.

He also said there was agreement on joint action of a "more limited character" in event the troops break down and heavy fighting is resumed in Korea.

This means:

A dangerous game has been narrowed in British and American policies for dealing with possible developments in Korea.

2. Adversity again has drawn these two great allies closer — rather than driven them apart.

3. A guarantee of greater security for the troops fighting in Korea.

It was only little more than a year ago the British refused even to approve permission for U. S. pilots to follow Red planes across the Yalu river in "hot pursuit" of the enemy.

American military and government leaders favored the "hot pursuit" policy. It would have permitted our pilots to chase the Red fliers across the Manchurian border during their aerial battles.

But Britain was among the nations which turned down the proposal made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, because they believed it might provoke spreading the war beyond the boundary of Korea.

The United States did not want to "do it alone" in such cases and always sought the approval of the Allies on such policies.

One of the great fears of American military men has been that the Chinese might combine a new ground offensive with all-out air attacks launched from Manchuria and Chinese air bases.

In such an attack, the Allies would be fighting with one hand tied behind their back if they couldn't smash the Red air bases.
